There was a general meeting. It was at 5 O'clock. I played the game to familiarize myself with it. The team leader gave me the task of a timer function that would start when the user made the first move and would stop when the user lost or won the game.

I did not know how to do my task. I spent some time reading up on the internet. I spent some time reading Abhiram Ranade's book.

The group met in the lab. I had come up with a sample of the function. We discussed Imran's program. I asked the TA a few doubts. They were cleared. I now understood how to write my function properly.

In all I spent 3.5 hours on this project.
