

What do we mean by demotivation?

Is there a definition that is actionable?

Sheer laziness vs busybodies

Leisure activities vs work

Extracurricular vs curricular

Informal learning vs formal

"Students do not show motivation towards academics that WE prescribe/desire"

- "Value" associated with motivation for learning

{ Curiosity driven Passion driven Self-discipline driven { Career driven Fashion driven	} future vs immediate
---	----------------------------------

Is this only a symptom of a larger change in society?

A paradigm shift in the societal power structure

- shift from creators of wealth to Managers of wealth manufacturing to Finance engineers to Market managers?

- large disparity between the two classes

Looking for "saints" among students is unrealistic.

Youngsters' environment has changed?

- Pressure to succeed
- Definition of success
- Onslaught of gadgets, information, networking
- Instant gratification & recognition
- A desire for self-driven activity

Kolaveri phenomenon

Necessity to "appreciate" and "empathise".

Younger the better

Problem is large and complex so should the solution be?

Faculty as a body needs to get engaged?

Rethink on pedagogical paradigms?
— not tinkering with tools of trade

Shift from Analysis and Instruction to synthesis and Creativity
